Michael Perham, who became the youngest person to cross the Atlantic alone when he was 14, set sail from Portsmouth harbor on Saturday, trying to become the youngest person to sail solo around the world.

He will cover 21,600 nautical miles, crossing every single line longitude and the equator, in four and a half months, and his only contact with family members back home will be limited to brief satellite conversations. Perham is expected back in Portsmouth in March around his 17th birthday.

"I'm a little bit nervous but otherwise really, really excited," Perham said before setting sail, admitting that the voyage was "a little crazy".

After managing to cross the Atlantic alone, he immediately began planning to break the round-the-world record as well. The current record holder is Australian Jessie Martin, who set the feat aged 18 in 1999.

Perham will sail along the African coast before crossing the Pacific and Southern Oceans via the Cape of Good Hope in South Africa, Cape Leeuwin in Australia, and Cape Horn in South America, according to his website.

(Paragraph 1) Life is really a beach for these employees at an office in Japan. The sound of waves and the crunch of sand beneath your feet, not quite the sensations you expect to have at the office. But staff at a venture company in Tokyo transformed their workplace in the hope of luring its employees, visitors and potential clients into believing that life can be a beach at work.

(Paragraph 2) Using a carpet of sand, speakers and a 3D projector, the firm has recreated a tropical beach in the very reception area they also use as their employee meeting space and staff lounge.

(Paragraph 3) One employee said the sound of the waves was actually soothing and helped her work. Others who use the space have even joked that they feel they have already gone off the holiday.

(Paragraph 1) The sharp decline of the elephant population in Tanzania, most likely due to poaching, is worrying. The country's government has just estimated that 65,721 elephants died there in the last five years. The report showed the number of Tanzanian elephants had plummeted. In 2009, there were an estimated 109,051. By 2014, the number was down to 43,330.

(Paragraph 2) The Tanzanian ports of Dar es Salaam and Zanzibar have also become main exit points for vast amounts of ivory. At least 45 tons of ivory have flowed from Tanzania to international markets in Asia since 2009.

(Paragraph 3) Across Tanzania, some smaller elephant populations had increased. In the famed Serengeti region, the number rose from 3,068 to 6,087 animals. However, beyond the most heavily visited tourist locations, elephant number were significantly down.

(Paragraph 4) The Tanzanian government says it has added an additional 1,000 rangers to protect wildlife. However, there is a real risk that it could be a case of too little too late for some elephant populations.

(Paragraph 5) In February, China imposed a one-year ban on ivory imports. The ban took immediate effect, but its citizens' desire for ivory has fueled poaching that threatens the life of African elephants.

The Great Sphinx of Giza in Egypt is a 20.22- meter tall stone figure of a lion with the head of a human. The structure of the Sphinx is cut entirely out of rock. Some people believe that there is a hidden area inside which people can enter, but no one has yet found a way to get in. Many stories have been told about the Great Sphinx as if it were a living creature and had the human qualities of being strong and wise.

There is one story about a young man who fell asleep next to the Great Sphinx. The man had gone hunting that day and he was tired. As he slept, the man dreamt that he would become the King of Egypt if he cleared away the desert sand that was partially covering the Sphinx.

But the story oddly had no ending. What do you think happened? Did the boy clean the sand away from the Sphinx? Did he become King of Egypt? No one seems to know.

Over time, wind and sand have worn away part of the Great Sphinx's nose as well as other areas. However, it is now being restored to look much like it once did.

Mount Tambora, on Sumbawa Island, Indonesia, erupted in April 1815. It destroyed most of the island's population and its vegetation. Trees were pushed into the sea along with the volcanic ash. Tsunamis caused by the explosion also affected islands nearby.

But the volcano's destructive power wasn't just limited to that area. The United States experienced extreme frosts and heavy snow even in July, ruining everything in the fields. The same happened elsewhere, causing a worldwide famine. This helped to spread a new strain of cholera in Asia and typhus in other regions.

Experts are now saying that Mount Tambora is likely to erupt again. Steady streams of earthquakes are currently shaking the island. Nobody knows for sure when and how intensely Mount Tambora will explode next, but we know it is awakening, and that's not good at all.

Russians generally don't celebrate birthdays before the actual day because this is considered bad luck. There is a belief that the birthday boy or girl who celebrates a birthday in advance may not live to see his or her special day. Also, many people don't celebrate the 40th because this number is associated with death.

In Russia, a birthday celebration is usually a great dinner with many dishes. It is a custom for the birthday person to provide the feast, and this includes paying for dinner if the celebration takes place in a restaurant.

Russian do not give some kinds of presents to birthday persons. Knives and scissors symbolize future conflict and are therefore seen as a bad omen. Likewise, scarves and handkerchiefs represent sorrow and clocks are a sign of departure. An empty purse is believed to cause poverty. Flowers given for a birthday celebration must be in odd number. An even number of flowers indicates misfortune and even death.

Someone recently bought a lock of John Lennon's hair for more than $48,000 canadian dallars. The 10-centimeter (four-inch) strand of hair is about 50 years old. Hairdresser Klaus Barbus gave Lennon a haircut in 1966 for the movie, "How I Won the War," about a fictional British army troop. He saved the hair all that time. It turns out, it was a smart idea.

John Lennon was a famous British musician---one of the most famous in the world. He was one of the Beatles, perhaps the most popular rock band in history. After the Beatles broke up in 1970, Lennon went on to have an extremely successful solo career.

While he was with the Beatles, he wrote (often with fellow Beatle Paul McCartney) most of the Beatles' biggest hits. He was also one of the band's lead singers, so when you hear a Beatles song, chances are John Lennon wrote it and can be heard singing it.

Lennon died tragically in 1980 when he was 40 years old, but music lovers around the world still remember him and his songs, including "A Hard Day's Night," "Help!" and "I Wanna Hold Your Hand" when he was with the Beatles and "Imagine" and "Give Peace a Chance" afterwards.

Paul Fraser, who lives in Britain and collects Beatles memorabilia (things from and about the Beatles), bought the strand of hair. He paid about three times more than anyone expected, according to the British newspaper, "The Guardian".

- ★ 1. Which of the following is NOT true about John Lennon?

LONDON: Oxford Dictionaries recognized the power of the millennial generation on Friday with its 2017 word of the year: 'youthquake'.

Oxford lexicographers say there was a fivefold increase in use of the term between 2016 and 2017. It is defined as "a significant cultural, political, or social change arising from the actions or influence of young people"

The word, coined almost 50 years ago by Diana Vreeland, then the editor of Vogue magazine, has been used to describe phenomena including surging youth support for Britain's Labour Party and the election of 30-something leaders in France and New Zealand.

Each year, Oxford University Press tracks how the English language is changing and chooses a word that reflects the annual mood. Oxford Dictionaries president Casper Grathwohl said youthquake has "yet to land firmly on American soil, but strong evidence in the UK calls it out as a word on the move".

Read the feature story.

Bonfire Night or 'Guy Fawkes Day', is celebrated in the United Kingdom on November 5 every year and has a very interesting history.

In 1605, King James I passed strict laws against the Catholics. They would be punished if they didn't attend the Protestant church. Some English Catholics were so angry that they planned to blow up the House of Parliament in protest. They put 36 barrels of gunpowder in the Parliament building and Guy Fawkes was to light them when the king came to open the Parliament on November 5. Unfortunately for him, the police found the gunpowder before it exploded and they caught him and the other men involved in the plot. The men were tortured and killed. To celebrate his survival, King James I ordered the people of England to have a bonfire on the night of November 5. Bonfire night went on to become a tradition, celebrated as Guy Fawkes Day.

Traditional Bonfire Night food is hot baked potatoes. However, in the north of England people eat a special type of cake called parkin. This is a way to make it. First, grease a cake tin and line with buttered paper. Then, beat an egg and milk together with a fork. Next, gently melt syrup, treacle (a thick sweet black liquid), sugar and butter together in a large pan until the sugar has dissolved. After that, mix together oatmeal, flour and ginger and stir into the syrup mixture, followed by the egg and milk. Finally, pour the mixture into the tin and bake for 50 minutes to 1 hour until the cake feels firm and a little crusty on top. Cool in the tin then wrap in foil and keep for 3-5 days before eating.

★ 1. Why was there a revolt in England in 1605?

1. Catholics were being sentenced to death.
2. Guy Fawkes broke King James I's laws.
3. Protestant churches used to punish Catholics.
4. Catholics did not agree with recently passed laws.

Read the research study.

- (1) About 25 years ago, a group of Canadian scientists wanted to create a strain of salmon that could survive in fish farms in the cold water off New Brunswick. They took genetic material from Chinook salmon and from an eel-like fish called the ocean pout and injected it into the eggs of an Atlantic salmon. The result was a fast-growing fish that looks and tastes like a regular farmed Atlantic salmon. Some people call it a "super salmon," while others call it "Frankenfish," after the fictional monster created by Dr. Frankenstein.
- (2) The controversial fish, called the AquAdvantage salmon, has been genetically modified. That means some of its DNA has been artificially changed. The modified salmon is also "transgenic," which means genetic material from a different type of organism has been artificially added to the salmon's DNA.
- (3) The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA), which regulates food in the United States, studied the salmon for several years. In 2010, they decided that the salmon was safe to eat and would have "no significant impact" on the environment as long as it was raised in special facilities and could not accidentally be released into rivers or oceans.
- (4) Because so many people requested that the FDA reconsider its decision, the FDA asked for comments from the public. It received more than 35,000 responses. It is still considering these comments and has not yet announced whether it will allow the salmon to be sold as food for humans.

Situation: Read the feature story. (Items 1-3)

Celebrated on April 1, April Fools' Day, also known as All Fools' Day, is a day for tricks, pranks and jokes. A simple example of a joke would be telling your friend that his shoelaces are undone. Then, when he bends down to do them up, you shout, 'April Fools!'

Although April Fools' Day has been celebrated for several centuries by different cultures, its exact origins remain a mystery. One theory suggests that the day comes from the change in the calendar in Europe from the Julian calendar to the Gregorian calendar. This moved the New Year from April 1 to January 1. When people forgot and still celebrated the New Year on April 1, other people played practical jokes on them.

Historians have linked April Fools' Day to festivals such as Hilaria, which was celebrated in ancient Rome at the end of March and involved people dressing up in disguises. There is also speculation that April Fools' Day was tied to the vernal equinox, or the first day of spring in the Northern Hemisphere, when Mother Nature fooled people with changing, unpredictable weather.

★ 1. What is the passage mainly about?

1. April Fools' pranks
2. An ancient Roman festival.
3. The background of April Fools' Day.
4. The change in the calendar in Europe.

A hundred and three huge shipping containers filled with plastic and electronic garbage have been sitting at a port near Manila, the Philippines's capital city. The president of the Philippines, Rodrigo Duterte, gave a "warning" to Canada that it needs to take back the garbage. "Prepare a grand reception," he said, "Your garbage is coming home."

The shipping containers were shipped from Canada in 2012 and 2013. The containers are labelled "plastic." The contents were sent to the Philippines to be recycled.

However, customs inspectors say the containers are actually full of about 2,500 tons of household garbage, plastics and electronics. Only about a third of what is in the containers can be recycled, according to the Globe and Mail.

Environmentalists in the Philippines and in Canada say that Canada has an obligation to take the garbage back. They say the waste is "illegal." They point to the Basel Convention, which is an agreement about how hazardous waste may be transported, especially from western countries to developing countries.

Canada is taking steps to reclaim the garbage. However, there is an issue about whom will pay for its transportation because the government cannot try to get the money from the company that sent it until all of the garbage is back in Canada again.

★ 1. What can be inferred from paragraph I ?

1. Canada is happy to take responsibility for the waste.
2. The Philippines will declare war against Canada.
3. The Philippines will send all the garbage back to Canada.
4. The Canadian waste will continue sitting at the same place.
